

Contents

User's guide	7
The centrality issue (1972–1987)	13
Gaining dominance	13
Planning crisis and a flood of proposals	15
Attempted resuscitation	17
Shaping policy and organizational structure	22
A diversity of machines	27
Shielding users from complexity	31
Communicating to the public	34
The performance gambit (1988–1996)	41
Simulation for all	42
The cost of visualizing computing output	46
The false security of benchmarks	51
Autonomy through regional cooperation	58
Stuttgart's two-pronged solution	64

Network to the rescue (1997–2005)	75
Feasibility study for a national high-performance computing network	77
Metacomputing – a transatlantic experiment	83
Does the university really need an HLRS?	89
Grid computing extends a lifeline	95
Users at work (2006–2016)	101
Taking it easy	102
With Gauss to Europe	106
Virtual users, and users in virtual reality	109
Limits to growth	112
A history of reconfiguration	115
Acknowledgments	117
Notes	119
Bibliography	143
List of figures	153